AN INDEPENDENT PAPER WHERE LOCAL IS KEY

Parra News was launched in 2020, filling a void left when major publishers pulled out of the local newspaper market, leaving our community without a weekly paper.

Local news has never been more important. In a world of misinformation, social media uncertainty and the emergence of AI, having a brand you can trust in your community is critical.

Parra News continues to deliver quality news and information to locals in the Parramatta and Cumberland Local Government Areas.

For advertisers, the paper and its digital assets offer an unrivalled way to access locals in this part of Sydney, often referred to as the second Central Business District.

Parra News is part of Western Sydney Publishing Group, and is the only free weekly news platform servicing the Parramatta and Cumberland Local Government Areas.

We're proud to be part of a western Sydney owned publishing group, that is totally independent.

We believe in the power of print, and more importantly the power of quality information to ensure a community thrives, and those who represent it are kept honest.

Parramatta's true local.
Keeping the community informed.

PARRAMATTA

An aerial photograph of Parramatta, showing the city skyline with several tall skyscrapers in the background. In the foreground, there is a river with a bridge, surrounded by green parks and modern residential buildings. The text 'SYDNEY'S SECOND CBD' is overlaid in white on the lower part of the image.

SYDNEY'S SECOND CBD

A thriving region in Sydney

Parramatta is a vibrant city and a major commercial and cultural centre in Sydney, often referred to as Sydney's second CBD.

Parramatta is one of the oldest European settlements in Australia, founded in 1788, the same year as Sydney.

It was originally named Rose Hill by Governor Arthur Phillip, but later renamed Parramatta, an Aboriginal word meaning “the place where the eels lie down”.

The city is known for its rich cultural diversity, with significant populations of people from various ethnic backgrounds, contributing to a vibrant mix of cuisines, festivals, and cultural activities.

Located just 24 kilometres from the Sydney CBD, Parramatta is a major economic hub in Greater Sydney, hosting the regional headquarters of many major corporations and government agencies.

It has a bustling commercial district with numerous retail shops, restaurants, and cafes.

The neighbouring city of Cumberland is equally diverse, and engaging, boasting a dedicated community where culture thrives.

With a major new Metro Line and the Western Sydney International Airport just down the road, the cities of Parramatta and Cumberland continue to grow.

HIGHLY ACCESSIBLE PUBLIC PICK-UP SPOTS

The Parra News print edition is delivered to highly accessible pick-up locations across the Parramatta and Cumberland Local Government Areas.

There are 80+ popular pick-up spots across the region, ranging from clubs and service stations to supermarkets and takeaway shops.

From high profile pick-up locations like libraries and supermarkets, through to smaller community shops and businesses, we've got everyone covered.

We monitor pick-up points regularly.

The Parra News print edition is also produced in digital replica format each week, and sent to more than 15,000 direct subscribers.

In addition, the digital replica edition is posted on our website, social media channels and other community social media channels.

The Parra News print edition has an estimated readership of more than 25,000 each week.

KEEPING LOCALS INFORMED ONLINE

The Parra News website has become an important resource in the local community, engaging both our traditional print audience in addition to a new, younger audience.

The Parra News website regularly attracts more than 8,000 page views every month.

The website features an array of up-to-date local news and sport, keeping local residents and former locals informed of what's happening where they live, work and play.

We regularly break major stories online, and the website is also a hub for the community with what's on guides, business directories and travel content.

Alongside our website, Parra News has a weekly EDM released Tuesdays to subscribers, featuring a digital replica of our print edition as well as breaking news and must-read local content. This newsletter has more than 15,000 subscribers.

USING THE POWER OF SOCIAL MEDIA

From Facebook to Instagram, X and TikTok, Parra News has always been at the forefront of using social media to connect with our local community.

And we regularly partner with advertisers to share content across our socials.

In addition to the traditional social media platforms, Parra News also engages with audiences across WhatsApp, Mastodon, Threads and other growing social outlets through our sister paper.

Parra News has unrivalled access to locals via social media, with extensive user engagement and profiles that have earned the organisation respect across the local community for its ability to break news and inform local residents.

Talk to us today about how we can work together to use the power of the Parra News social media presence to boost your business. We have a range of options available.

IN THE SPOTLIGHT: BE UP IN LIGHTS!

One of our most popular features every week, In The Spotlight allows your business to be up in lights!

This affordable package includes a half page advertisement, with a half page advertorial above it.

Plus the advertorial will be featured on the Sponsored Content section of the Weekender website, and shared on social media.

The sponsored content can be supplied, or written by one of our experienced journalists to get the right message out there.

In The Spotlight is a fantastic way to introduce a new business to the local community, or announce major news or changes.

It's a great way to build respect and brand awareness for your business in the area.

Plus, your sales executive will deliver a framed copy of your In The Spotlight feature, which can be presented at your office.

BECOME A SPONSOR OF OUR TV GUIDE

When it comes to high level reader engagement, you can't go past a TV Guide.

Parra News re-introduced a TV Guide several years ago following high demand from readers.

With many older readers not subscribed to streaming services and relying on traditional television, it's important they have an up-to-date guide for their week's viewings.

Our TV Guide features all the free-to-air channels, and readers hold on to it for an entire week, which means brand engagement with advertisers is extremely high.

Plus, we run a regular Chatter on the Box TV column to complement our TV Guide.

Your business can sponsor our TV Guide with exclusive branding, delivering important messages to readers that have repeat views through the week.

Premiers await exciting Eels

NATHAN TAYLOR

Parramatta celebrate Bryce Cartwright crossing the line. Photo: NRL Images.

Are the Eels the real deal in 2024? That's the question being asked around Parramatta this week after the side demolished the Canterbury Bulldogs 26-8 in the opening round of the season.

Played in front of a sold-out crowd at CommBank Stadium last Saturday, the Eels ran in four tries to two, with backrower Bryce Cartwright scoring a double in the 18-point victory.

Parramatta were in control for the entire match, leading 20-0 after 51 minutes before Cameron Ciraldo's men crossed for two late consolation tries.

New Eels centre Morgan Harper - in his debut match for the club - opened the scoring in the 12th minute, while winger Ben Simonsson put the finishing touch on the game with a try with four minutes to go. The only downside for Eels fans was injury to halfback Mitch Moses. The half was able to play on, and Ciraldo didn't appear too concerned speaking after the game.

"The doctor said his knee was sore but he was OK," said Harper. "That was the best news I heard that was the best news I heard. The Eels will be back on Friday night."
